Comparative Study of Electoral Systems
Macro-Level Data Pertinent to the Election at which the Module was Administered

The institutional system of any country is made of several interrelated parts that may be thought to fall into three broad categories: those pertaining to the country as a whole; those pertaining to political parties; and those pertaining to individual primary electoral districts (constituencies). The following questions are grouped by these categories (country-level questions, party-level questions, and constituency-level questions).

THIS FIRST SET OF QUESTIONS (Q1 TO Q29) PERTAINS TO COUNTRY-LEVEL INSTITUTIONS.

A. Macro-Level Data on Regime Type.

Below are various questions about the type of regime—presidential, parliamentary, semi-presidential—in your country. There are two potential problems with these questions that should be noted at the outset. First, in some countries there may be a discrepancy between the de jure (or legal) situation and the de facto (or practical) situation. For example, in Great Britain the Queen still possesses a legal right to veto legislation, but this right has not been exercised since 1707. In the case of such obviously obsolete powers, please answer according to the de facto situation. Otherwise, describe the de jure situation. A second potential problem is that the questions may not be phrased optimally for the situation in your particular country. In such cases, please answer as best you can, providing some indication of the difficulties as you see them.

We use the term “Head of State” to refer to the state official to whom foreign envoys present their credentials and who represents the nation on ceremonial occasions. The Head of State may or may not also be the “Head of Government”—which refers to the chief executive officer of a country’s government.

Finally, some questions are marked with an asterisk. The committee recognizes that these questions may be particularly difficult to answer in some countries and so responses to them are optional.

B. Macro-Level Data Pertinent to the Election at which the Module was Administered

9) Governments formed since previous dissolution. We are interested here in all governments formed between the dissolution immediately preceding the election at which the survey module was administered and the next previous dissolution. The government in office at the time of the most recent dissolution would be listed as government number 1 (N = 1), the next previous government would be N = 2, and so forth. In the first table (a) the column headed “Govt start date” asks for the date on which the government took office (month and year are adequate). The column headed “Govt majority?” asks whether the government in question held a majority of seats in the lower house of the national assembly (yes/no). The column headed “Govt caretaker?” asks whether the government in question was a caretaker (yes/no). (A caretaker government is defined as one that takes office because of the absence of a legislative majority to sustain an effective government and is meant to stay in office only for a short while—e.g. between the calling of a new election and the investiture of a new government. Caretaker governments are expected to run the routine business of government and react to ongoing events without initiating legislation or policy changes on issues where no prior consensus exists among a majority of deputies.)

The second table (b) asks for the party composition of each government listed in the previous table, and for the number of ministerial positions held by each governmental party (which can be zero). In the last row of table (b) please code the number of ministerial positions held by non-partisan or independent members of a government (which, again, can be zero).

C. Macro-Level Data on Electoral Institutions

A central theme in the Comparative Study of Electoral Systems concerns the impact of electoral institutions on voting behavior and election outcomes. In order to assess the impact of institutions properly, a necessary preliminary step is to obtain accurate information on those institutional arrangements. The purpose of this document is to describe the kind of information we are asking you to provide.

Overview of Information Needed
In most countries, the best source of the needed information is the electoral statute or code that currently governs lower house elections. If the text of the law is available in a variety of different languages, please send a version in the most accessible language available. In any event, please also provide full bibliographic information on the source of the information sent.

In a few countries, such as the U.K., there may not be a single statute that governs elections. In such cases, our hope is that you will do your best to provide an accurate description of the electoral system in response to the detailed questions described below.

For those countries in which there is an electoral statute, there may also be other sources of information on the electoral procedure that you know of: perhaps the constitution specifies part of the electoral system, or perhaps a local scholar has written a description of the electoral system, or perhaps there is a map of the electoral districts available. It would be helpful if these materials could be sent as well.

Details of Information Needed

The kinds of details that are needed are indicated by the following list of questions. Even if you are sending a copy of the electoral code or other materials, please also answer these questions.

The committee recognizes that some questions may be particularly difficult to answer. These questions, which are optional, are marked with an asterisk.

I. Questions about electoral districts.

Definitions: An electoral district is defined as a geographic area within which votes are counted and seats allocated. If a district cannot be partitioned into smaller districts within which votes are counted and seats allocated, it is called primary. If it can be partitioned into primary districts, and there is some transfer of votes and/or seats from the primary districts to the larger district, then the larger district is called secondary. If a district can be partitioned into secondary districts (again with some transfer of votes and/or seats), it is called tertiary.

In some electoral systems, there are electoral districts that are geographically nested but not otherwise related for purposes of seat allocation. In Lithuania, for example, there are 71 single-member districts that operate under a majority runoff system, and also a single nationwide district that operates under proportional representation (the largest remainders method with the Hare quota). Neither votes nor seats from the single-member districts transfer to the nationwide district, however. The two processes are entirely independent (with voters having one vote in each district). In this case, the nationwide district, although it contains the 71 single-member districts, is not considered to be secondary. It is primary. One might say that there are two segments to the electoral system in such cases.

11) How many segments (as just defined) are there in the electoral system?

   - 1 segment
   - X 2 segments (In Denmark it does not matter much as there are supplementary mandates ensuring strictly proportional representation)
For the first (or only) segment, please answer the following questions (questions 12 through 15):

12) How many primary electoral districts are there? ______

13) How many secondary electoral districts are there countrywide? ______

14) How many tertiary electoral districts are there? ______

*15) Please answer one version of the following question. The first version of the question is more difficult to answer but will be more useful (as it will enable researchers to identify the district magnitude of the primary district in which each respondent resides).

(Version 1) Each survey includes a variable that identifies the primary electoral district for each respondent. Using the coding scheme for this variable, please fill out the following table. For example, in the case of the U.S., the variable identifying primary districts is coded as a number from 1 to 435. All of these districts return a single member and so, to fill out the table, all that is necessary is to write “1-435” in the first row (“Code numbers of districts returning 1 seat”). If a row is left blank, this will be interpreted as indicating that there are no districts that return the corresponding number of seats. If there are districts returning more than 15 members, please list these in the last five rows of the table (filling in the appropriate number of seats).

a) Code numbers of districts returning 1 seat
b) Code numbers of districts returning 2 seats
c) Code numbers of districts returning 3 seats
d) Code numbers of districts returning 4 seats
e) Code numbers of districts returning 5 seats

r) Code numbers of districts returning __ seats
s) Code numbers of districts returning __ seats
t) Code numbers of districts returning __ seats
u) Code numbers of districts returning __ seats

(Version 2) If it is not known how many members each primary electoral district returns but it is known how many districts of each size there are, please fill out the following table:

a) Number of districts returning 1 seat
b) Number of districts returning 2 seats 1
  c) Number of districts returning 3 seats

II. QUESTIONS ABOUT VOTING IN THE ELECTION AT WHICH THE MODULE WAS ADMINISTERED.

20) How many votes do or can voters cast? We are asking here about the prima facie choice that the ballot poses to the voter. In some systems, the voter votes for a candidate but that vote automatically counts also for the candidate's party list (e.g., Finland). One might reasonably say that in this sort of case the voter is voting simultaneously for a candidate and a party. Here, however, we focus on the choice as it appears on the ballot, not on the choice as it is in light of vote transfer rules. We shall ask a separate question below about whether votes cast for individuals also count for their lists or whether votes cast for lists also count for alliances.

a) Response options for systems with a single segment:
   ____ Voters cast one vote, for a list
   ____ Voters cast one vote, for a candidate
   ____ Voters cast one vote, for a candidate, and may vote again in a runoff election ____ Voters cast a single transferable vote
   ____ Voters can cast either one vote for a list, or one vote for a candidate, but not both ____ Voters cast one vote for a list, and in addition can cast votes for individuals on that list
   ____ Voters cast multiple votes, for candidates
Voters cast one vote for a list, and one vote for a candidate
Voters cast one vote, for a slate that includes candidates not just for the lower house of the national assembly but also candidates for other offices (such as the upper house or the presidency)
Other (please explain)

b) Response options for systems with two segments:
Voters cast one vote for a list, and one vote for a candidate
Other (please explain)

a) If voters cast a single vote for a candidate, do those votes also—via pooling—automatically count for that candidate’s party list? _X_ Yes ___ No
b) If voters cast a single vote do those votes count—via fusion—for a slate that includes candidates for several offices simultaneously (e.g. president, lower House and Senate)? ____ Yes _X_ No
c) If voters cast a single vote for a list, can those votes also count—via apparentement arrangements—for an alliance to which the list belongs? ____ Yes _X_ No

22) If voters cast multiple votes for candidates, can these votes be cumulated (that is, can more than one vote be given to the same candidate)? ____ Yes ____ No

23) Are there any other features of voting that should be noted? ________________________________

c) If there is a regional threshold, what is it (in percentage terms)? ______
d) If there is a district threshold, what is it (in percentage terms)? ______

Modified Sainte-Laguë method of PR
Largest remainders—Hare quota
Largest remainders—Droop quota
Largest remainders—other quota (please explain)

Single transferable vote system
Plurality
Majority runoff
Alternative vote
Other (please specify)

Definition: A list is closed if the seats that are awarded to that list are always occupied by the candidates in order of their appearance on the list (i.e., if the list gets x seats then necessarily the top x names on the list get the seats). A list is open if the question of which candidates on the list get the seats that are awarded to the list is determined solely by the votes that each candidate receives. A list is flexible if it is neither closed nor open.

28) If there are lists, are they closed, open, or flexible?
closed
doctor flexible, but in practice virtually closed flexible flexible, but in practice virtually open open (decided by the parties)

If there is a second segment in the system, please answer the following questions (questions 29 through 33) for the second segment. (Otherwise, jump to question 34):

33) If there are lists, are they closed, open, or flexible?
   _____ closed
   _____ flexible, but in practice virtually closed _____ flexible

   _____ open

IV. QUESTIONS ABOUT THE POSSIBILITIES OF ELECTORAL ALLIANCE.

34) What are the possibilities of alliance in the system?  _____ NONE supporters there to vote for an ally’s list or candidate?  _____ Yes  _X_ No q35b may be redundant given q21c??

Definitions: A joint list refers to one on which candidates of different parties run together. Apparentement refers to a legal agreement between two or more lists to pool their votes for the purposes of an initial seat allocation, with seats initially allocated to the alliance then reallocated to the lists in the alliance.

36) If joint lists are possible, are they subject to different regulations than single-party lists? For example, higher thresholds, different numbers of candidates that may appear on the list, etc.

37) If apparentement is possible, what lists can participate in such agreements?
   _____ lists of the same party in the same constituency?
___ lists of the same party from different constituencies?
___ lists of different parties in the same constituency?

41)

a) For years, people have described political parties as being on the Left or the Right. Do you believe that the terms "Left" and "Right" capture important political differences in your country?  X  Yes  ___ No

b) (If yes to a) What are the key differences that separate Left and Right in your country today?  Equality, welfare state, state control, (enwirement) = traditional left-right

c) Thinking about the most important differences between your country’s political parties today, where would you place them on the scale below?

Perhaps the terms "Left" and "Right" don't describe the most important conflict today. If you prefer some other set of labels (such as Libertarian-Authoritarian, or Progressive-Conservative, for example), please cross out the labels "Left" and "Right" and write in the labels that best describe the really important differences between parties today in the spaces below:

(i) Replace "Left" with: ______________________

(ii) Replace "Right" with: ______________________

Comment: respondents have not been asked. But these is a “new politics” left-right dimension (or libertarien – authoritarian) with the following sequence: Ô-F-B-A/D/Q-Z-Ô

d) Some CSES collaborators have chosen to ask their respondents to place parties on a second dimension, on a scale other than the left/right scale. If you have asked respondents to also rank political parties on a dimension other than the left-right dimension, please also provide your own rankings on this other dimension. (Please describe the scale and label its endpoints below.)

(iii) Description of scale:

Label for value=0: ___________ Label for value=10: ___________

42) Electoral Alliances (that is, alliances made prior to or during the election campaign for the purpose of improving electoral performance, not those made after the election for the purpose of forming a government).

Sometimes, electoral alliances are made at the constituency level as, for example, in Finland or Brazil. Documenting who is allied with whom, and how, in each constituency is a large task and we do not expect you to do more than make some general reference to the existence of constituency-level alliances. Sometimes, electoral alliances are made at the national level -- these are the alliances that we would like you will identify. Information is sought on who is allied with whom and on the nature of the electoral alliance.
a) Were electoral alliances permitted during the election campaign?
   ___ Yes ___ X No

b) (If yes) Did any electoral alliances form?
   ___ Yes ___ No

c) (If yes to b) If electoral alliances formed in the last election, list the party alliances that formed:

THE FINAL QUESTIONS PERTAIN TO THE CONSTITUENCY-LEVEL PARTS OF THE ELECTORAL SYSTEM.

44) Variable number/name in the dataset that identifies the primary electoral district for each respondent ______________

45) Does this constituency belong to any secondary electoral districts? ____ Yes ____ No

If the national team plans to collect aggregate election returns (or constituency-level returns) in order to validate the survey responses, please send these along too.
